TASTEBUD TUESDAYS!

Lincoln Savings Bank was our
September recipient of TasteBud

October is Ankeny Bullying Prevention Month

October is Ankeny Bullying Prevention Month, according to a new proclamation signed by Mayor Gary Lorenz at the September 16 Ankeny City Council Meeting. The Ankeny Community Education Advisory Council worked with the mayor and other community leaders to develop the proclamation to coincide with National Bullying Prevention month and the roll-out of a new anti-bullying action plan from Ankeny Schools. The proclamation adopted the schools' new anti-bullying theme, "Bullying: We don't do that here."

Ankeny Schools' new anti-bullying action plan was developed by the superintendent's Bullying and Harassment Task Force in 2012-2013, and adopted by unanimous vote of the School Board on September 16. In support of the school's actions, and in response to a previous community survey, community groups have begun organizing activities for the month of October to raise awareness.

"We're very pleased to see this coordinated effort, and the enthusiasm and seriousness with which our community members are addressing this issue," said Assistant Superintendent Dr. Matt Adams. "October is just the beginning, however. Bullying prevention is a year-round topic and we will be focused on this issue all year, every year, to help change the culture in Ankeny."

Businesses, civic, school and community members are encouraged to host an activity in support of this proclamation, utilizing the new theme and the color orange, which is designated for bullying prevention month. If you would like to plan an event, activity, or awareness generating project, please email your idea with a brief description to the Ankeny Community Education Advisory Council at karen.norton@ankenyschools.org. Activities that are already in the works include:

Ankeny Parks and Recreation
Kirkendall Library
YMCA childcare
Ankeny Community Schools

Distributing sportsmanship brochures to youth rec teams
Anti-bullying bookmarks
Posters to be hung in Ankeny schools and businesses
Launch of anti-bullying action plan, including Rock in Prevention interactive presentations for students, new Anti-Bullying Hotline and other strategies.

Why bullying prevention?

In order to identify the needs of our changing community, the Community Education Advisory Council conducted a community survey and followed up with focus group assessments in the fall of 2011. Over 1,500 surveys were completed and provided insight that bullying prevention was in the top three concerns of survey respondents.

Six stakeholder focus groups, led by the University of Northern Iowa Institute for Decision Making; and which included representation from seniors and retirees; city and chamber of commerce officials; school board and educators; parents of students in Ankeny; leaders from non-profit organizations and churches; and high school students; discussed the survey data and shared ideas. In 2013, Ankeny Superintendent of Schools Dr. Bruce Kimpston formed the Ankeny Schools Bullying and Harassment Task Force, comprised of community representatives, administrators, teachers, School Board members and members of the Ankeny Community Education Advisory Council. A second survey, this time specific to bullying, was conducted and a presentation of its findings shared with the school board.
