Re-source: -noun; a source of supply, support, or aid, especially one that can be readily drawn upon when needed. The health (viability; sustainability) of an organization is often influenced by the effectiveness of its culture and corresponding benefit program in attracting and retaining the most qualified and motivated employees. The complexity of the benefit environment has placed overwhelming demands on business owners, human resource professionals, and Managers within an organization, averting their focus from revenue production and other core competencies. Benefit Resources partners with businesses to guide them in the design, implementation, education and daily administration of employee benefit programs, thereby affording key employees the opportunity to emphasize income-generating activities. Others say they do what we do; the difference is - we do it better. Who is your resource going to be in 2010?

In 1979, the Iowa Department of Substance Abuse recommended that a certification process be developed for Iowa's substance abuse counselors. Following many state-wide meetings over the next several years with both state officials and professionals, the State endorsed the Iowa Board of Substance Abuse Certification (IBSAC) to perform the certification process in 1982. This voluntary certification was designed to assure the professional competency of substance abuse counselors, as well as to provide substance abuse professionals within the State a credential which would ensure that the highest professional standards could be established, maintained and updated. In 1986, IBSAC became a member of the IC&RC (International Reciprocity and Certification Consortium), the largest global organization in addiction-related behavioral healthcare credentialing. By 1988, IBSAC had established a credential for Prevention Specialists, and in 2006 a Certified Gambling Treatment Counselor credential was developed. Since that time, credentials have also been developed for Criminal Justice professionals, co-occurring (mental health and substance abuse) professionals, and Clinical Supervisors within the substance abuse field. To better reflect the varied credentials that were offered, the Board of Directors voted to change the organization's name in July 2006 to the Iowa Board of Certification (IBC). The Iowa Board of Certification is a non-profit organization which currently has 1100 certified addictions-related and behavioral health professionals in the State of Iowa, and operates under the leadership of its Board of Directors and Executive Director.
